

"Choose Character Over Bullying"

BULLYING PREVENTION K-12 SCHOOL ASSEMBLY PROGRAMS

Performance + Message by Cary Trivanovich

Cary's performance is akin to a comedian performing pantomime. Not just "pantomime" however — Cary is highly acclaimed in educational theatre for his pantomime, and the reaction he receives in school assemblies must be seen to be believed. His performance earns so much respect with his audiences that he is able to follow with a straightforward message with pin-drop attention.

Cary's message follows his performance. It is presented in a positive manner with an informal big-brother attitude, designed to affect hearts about the sensitivity and well-being of others. It will be tailored to the age level and the specific climate and degree of bullying at your school. Whether about students who are bullying in ignorance of how they are acting, or about the more serious staunch bullies, Cary's message speaks to the heart of every student.

- * Cary relates the painful consequences of physical, social, and online "cyber" bullying.
- * Cary effectively exposes the self-centered attitude of bullying, and the desire for some bullies to be somebody, defining for the audience why kids bully while subliminally exposing the immaturity of it.
- * He encourages the bullied, giving them helpful and practical advice.
- * Cary gives special emphasis to cyber-bullying in middle and high school assemblies, inspiring students about the value and importance of confronting their friends who are committing such actions.
- * He encourages protecting the bullied and reporting bullying when being a witness to it.
- * Cary culminates his message with his very positive "Three Chairs" Peer Leadership talk about being the kind of peer who is a magnet for friends—unselfish and giving.
-  The above aspects are tailored and discussed in assemblies with varying depth from school to school, depending on each school's interest.
